

ALoud

HERS TO SAY.

A stage, a microphone, and five minutes. Any format. Women only on the mic. All welcome in the room.

ALoud is a monthly open mic series for women, launching in Lisbon and growing into chapters across Europe. This document is the rulebook for everything ALoud looks like in public — the wordmark, the colors, the typography, and the small motif at the heart of the “O.”

It exists so that a poster in a café window, a signup form on a phone, and a chapter-launch deck all feel like the same room.

Read the rules. Then bend them when the moment calls for it. ALoud is bold and playful. So is good design.

EDITION 02
LISBON · APR 2026

THE WORDMARK

The wordmark is the room. It is the curtain, the mic, and the spotlight, drawn in five letters. It does not get cropped, recolored to taste, or set in a different font. Treat it like the door of the venue.

ANATOMY

DISPLAY FACE

Set in Glassure, weight 900. The custom Tuscan serif is the wordmark — never substitute a generic display.

TRACKING & CASE

Always uppercase, tracked at -10 ($\approx -0.01\text{em}$). The five letters are kerned as a single unit; do not letter-space.

CLEAR SPACE

Reserve a margin equal to the cap height (X) on all sides. Nothing else lives inside the box.

LOCKUPS

MISUSE

DO

ALOUD

Set on the approved color pairs. Lime on lilac is the primary lockup.

DON'T

ALOUD

Don't skew, italicize, stretch, or rotate the wordmark.

DO

ALOUD

Use secondary pairs (tomato/pink, periwinkle/lime) for variety across the year.

DON'T

ALOUD

Don't substitute the display face. The wordmark is Glassure — not Times, not a default serif.

DO

ALOUD

On ink, use lime or lilac. Both pop without going neon-candy.

DON'T

Don't apply gradients, drop shadows, glows, or photo backgrounds behind the wordmark.

COLOR

*A primary pair, two secondary pairs, and two neutrals.
Together they're loud without shouting, and chromatic without a single gradient. Lime is the voice. Lilac is the room.*

PRIMARY

USE IT LIKE

Lime is the wordmark color, the primary headline color on lilac, and the “exit row” brightness in any layout. It is electric — give it space.

Lilac is the default hero surface, the soft room behind the loud word. Use it full-bleed. Never gradient.

DON'T

Don't tint or shade the primaries to make new colors. Don't put lime text on a paper background — it disappears. Don't put two primaries next to each other at the same area; one is always dominant, the other accents.

CONTRAST

Bold colors only work when you can read them. Every approved pair below has been checked against WCAG 2.1 — large display type follows AA at 3:1, body and UI type follows AA at 4.5:1.

TYPE

Four voices in the room: a tall serif that does the talking, a literary italic that listens back, a clean sans for instructions, and a handwritten note left on the door.

RULES

1. The wordmark is a mark, not text. Set in Glassure 900, tracked -10. Never retype it inline; reuse the SVG or the brand asset.
2. One headline per surface. A single line at 180px is more ALOUD than three lines at 48px. Give it room.
3. Title Case Like This is forbidden. Use ALL CAPS for display, sentence case for body and UI.
4. Body serif and body sans don't touch. Pick one voice per paragraph. Mixing them inside a sentence breaks the spell.
5. Caveat is for one word at a time. A note in the margin, a "yes" under a date. Never a sentence longer than five words. Never UI labels.
6. Periods on posters. "Hers to say." — the line ends in a stop. ALOUD doesn't shout, so it doesn't trail off either.
7. No exclamation marks. Anywhere. Ever.
8. Tracking. Display: -0.01em. Caps body / micro: +0.16em. Sentence body: 0. That's it.

SPECIMEN — LILAC ON LIME · H2

HERS TO SAY.

"The room was small, then she opened her mouth and it wasn't."

— ALUNO, CAIS DO SODRÉ · MAR 2026

The middle “O” in ALOUD is the system’s one visual flourish. Three approved variants — a microphone, an open mouth, a spotlight — rotate by surface. Never invent a fourth.

THREE "O"S

CONSTRUCTION

All three are drawn on a 100 × 140 grid with a 6px stroke at the cap-height ring. The mouth and spotlight share the mic's outer circle so they swap cleanly inside the "O."

Stroke weight scales with the wordmark — at 240px wordmark, the "O" ring is 6px; below 60px, simplify to a solid filled circle.

USE

Rotate variants across an Instagram grid, a poster series, or chapter launches. Mic for "sign up," mouth for stories and recaps, spotlight for performer features.

The motif may rotate slowly (20s linear infinite) on web headers — the system's one perpetual animation. Static everywhere else.

IN THE WORDMARK

WHEN

Use sparingly — campaign hero only. The motif must read at scale; below 120px wordmark, drop back to the plain “O.”

SIZING

The motif glyph occupies the same advance as the original “O”. Center it on the cap height; do not let it descend below the baseline.

COLOR

The motif always matches the wordmark color — never a third color. If the wordmark is lime, the motif is lime.

COLOPHON

EDITION

Edition 02 — April 2026. Replaces Edition 01 (forest + fuchsia, January 2026) in full. The lilac/lime palette is the new ALOUD.
